

IRISH CONSTITUTION HAS NOVEL FEATURE

Part of Cabinet Must Resign if Defeated, Others Continue in Office.

FULL TERM 4 YEARS

Vocational Councils Have Advisory Function, but No Legislative Power.

SENATE MAY ACT AS DRAG

Natural Resources, Including Air and Potential Energy Are Nationalized.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK HERALD. Copyright, 1922, by THE NEW YORK HERALD.

The constitution of the Irish Free State, which awaits ratification by the British Parliament, contains nearly all the recently devised provisions to make the Government truly democratic and fully amenable to popular control. While retaining the governmental machinery that has proved satisfactory in other countries, the new document cautiously incorporates a few innovations.

The most novel feature is a provision permitting the establishment of "functional" or vocational councils, representing the various branches of the social and economic life of the nation. These are constructed along the lines advocated by Sydney Beatrice Webb in England. Under the Irish system, however, these councils have no actual legislative power. They will be composed of distinguished persons representing the lawyers, the doctors, the laborers, the farmers, et al. Their function will be to advise the Ministers to recommend and criticize legislation affecting their interests. The theory underlying the scheme is that a citizen may vote for a member of Parliament who represents his ideas of national policy, and also vote for a member of the vocational council who might have a contrary national policy but who represents his idea concerning vocational.

The constitution also provides the initiative and referendum, familiar to many Americans. All constitutional amendments must be submitted to a referendum and must be accepted by a majority of the voters on the register, or two-thirds of those voting.

The only real power given to the Senate enables it to delay any legislation passed by the Chamber of Deputies, and call for a referendum. Two-fifths of the members of the Chamber may delay the enforcement of a bill ninety days to give the voters a chance to invoke the referendum. A majority of the Senate may similarly delay a bill ninety days, and three-fifths of the Senate may call a referendum. The Irish Cabinet represents a new departure, somewhat similar to the Swiss plan. It is a mixture of the British system, whereby the whole Cabinet must resign if any Cabinet proposal is defeated, and the American system, under which the members hold office for four years unless removed for a special reason. The new scheme was designed to lessen the influence of political parties.

The Cabinet is to be composed of twelve members. At least five, but no more than seven of these, will be members of the "executive council," which is charged with the foreign policy and the handling of all fiscal affairs. These must be members of the Dail Eireann, including the President and the Vice-President, and are elected by the Dail. They shall work as a unit, resigning collectively if their program fails to receive the support of the Dail.

The remaining ministers also are to be elected by the Dail, but may or may not be members. They hold office for four years unless removed. They are the heads of departments, charged with administering them and introducing legislation in the Dail, but are not obliged to resign if they fail to pass their measures.

The proportional representation system also is included in the constitution, both for electing members of the Dail and the houses of Parliament. This, as was demonstrated last June, gives to every interest representation according to its voting strength.

Among the rights guaranteed to citizens of the Free State are the usual ones common to modern constitutions, and also the right to a free elementary education. Religious freedom is made inviolable.

A new experiment will be tried in the declaration that all the natural resources of the Free State, "including the air and all forms of potential energy," and all royalties and franchises arising therefrom belong to the Free State, subject to concessions already existing at the time of the passage of the constitution.

IRISH REBELS PLEDGE TO DEFEND 'REPUBLIC'

But Council of State Has Not Materialized.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK HERALD. Copyright, 1922, by THE NEW YORK HERALD.

Eamon De Valera has succeeded partly in healing the breach between the military and political elements in his anti-party party. A proclamation signed by Liam Lynch, irregular chief of staff, and twelve members of the irregular executive council has been issued, in which the rebels pledge themselves to support De Valera's council of state, announced two days ago, and to defend the republic.

The anti-party party by these proclamations seeks to embarrass the Cosgrave Government in dealing with the Prime Minister Bonar Law's Unionist Cabinet. De Valera's only real hope of victory is to get England to violate the treaty by demanding further guarantees in the new constitution, thereby reducing the status of Ireland in the free state treaty. Mr. Cosgrave, however, THE NEW YORK HERALD correspondent learns on excellent authority, is not afraid that this will happen.

Although De Valera's council of state has been established two days, and though De Valera a month ago deprecated such a proclamation unless it could be maintained visibly, the new governing body of the republic has as yet not given any signs of birth.

The Free State Government believes its military position to be steadily improving, with the rebels steadily becoming less effective. Dublin is so quiet that the citizens wonder if the rebels are saving up for a coup when the last British troops leave, about December 6.

TEN SHOPLIFTERS SENTENCED IN DAY

Five More Alleged Thieves Arraigned—Farmer Gets Six Months for Taking Coat.

Fifteen men and women arrested by detectives of the Stores Mutual Protective Association were arraigned before Justices Kernochan, Moss and Edwards in Special Sessions yesterday on charges of shoplifting. Ten pleaded guilty, nine getting prison sentences and one a suspended sentence. The five who pleaded not guilty will be tried later.

Elsie Burke, 19, of 84 West Eighty-eighth street, faintly and had to be carried from the court room when she was sentenced to Bedford reformatory. She had stolen two dresses worth $45 from Macy's.

Two burlesque chorus girls, Laura Levois, of 604 West 188th street, and Elsie Flynn, 23, of 602 West 188th street, pleaded guilty to the theft of merchandise valued at $39.32 and received twenty days each in the workhouse.

Anna Battles, 28, an actress, of 77 Avenue A, admitted stealing a hat valued at $5.34 from a Broadway store. She got thirty days.

Adelaide Cooper, 22, of 339 West Fifty-eighth street, pleaded guilty to thefts from Macy's. Her sentence was ten days in the workhouse.

Mrs. Elvina Guinda, 25, of 317 East Forty-first street, and her brother, John Loehia, 29, of 224 East Fifty-eighth street, who pleaded guilty to stealing merchandise worth $7 from Macy's, were ordered to spend a day in the Tombs and to pay fines of $25 each.

Francisco Aponte, 39, who said he was a farmer, staying at the Mills Hotel in Bleeker street, got six months in the workhouse, after admitting that he stole an overcoat from Macy's, whither he went to get warm.

TAX DRIVE IS BEGUN UPON SMALL STORES

Treasury Expects to Collect $1,000,000 Here.

Special Dispatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD. Copyright, 1922, by THE NEW YORK HERALD.

A house to house canvass of small business concerns in New York and other cities is being made by income tax officials to complete the 1922 drive against delinquent taxpayers.

Treasury officials expect to assess in New York city alone $100,000,000, due in back taxes from individuals and business concerns. There are thousands of delinquents in New York who have failed to file returns or who have filed returns with incorrect or no returns have been filed by retail storekeepers, restaurateurs and others. Much of the delinquency has been due to ignorance, but that will make no difference in assessments of taxes and penalties.

The volume of business done by thousands of small concerns has been checked through manufacturers or others from whom they purchased supplies. In addition, representatives of tax officers have visited men known to be delinquent and checked up on the number of customers and the approximate amount of sales.

Much trouble has been experienced with the small storekeeper who keeps no books. There has been no way to check his guess as to income until the present effort to check volume of sales through stocks purchased and by observation.

TWO CHURCHES NEARING 75TH ANNIVERSARIES

Plans Made by St. Columba's and St. Alphonsus's.

Two old and prominent Roman Catholic churches—St. Alphonsus's, West Broadway and Canal street, and St. Columba's, West Twenty-fifth street—will reach soon the seventy-fifth anniversary of their dedication. Coadjutor McCloskey, later Cardinal, dedicated St. Columba's and the late Bishop Hughes laid the cornerstone of the first St. Alphonsus's Church.

The parishioners of these churches will celebrate the anniversaries with special features. That in honor of St. Alphonsus's will be a three day affair, with a reunion of past and present parishioners at a banquet.

The celebration at St. Columba's will last for a week. It will begin with a pontifical mass at which Bishop Dunn, rector of the Church of the Annunciation, will preside. Archbishop Hayes will be present. There will be solemn vespers in the evening, with the priest's choir of the diocese doing the chanting. A solemn mass of requiem for the repose of the souls of deceased priests and parishioners of the church and a solemn mass of thanksgiving for all the school children will be sung.

The Rev. Thomas A. Thornton, rector, will say the children's mass.

Early demand for tickets to premiere "Douglas Fairbanks in Robin Hood" to-morrow night at Lyric Theatre has swept away every available seat. In response to many letters from friends among public expressing disappointment at being unable to purchase tickets for occasion due to this situation, have arranged for another special performance to-morrow night immediately following premiere and starting at eleven fifteen P. M. The second performance to be termed "Nighttime Premiere" and will be identically same as earlier presentation. Am taking this means of reaching public at eleventh hour as anxious to take care of those who want to be on hand for "first night." Best wishes.

Whatever You Do Don't Neglect Your Eyes, Says Dr. Lewis, Who Tells How to Strengthen Eyesight
Are you a victim of eye strain or other eye weaknesses? If so, you will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is a way to save them now before it is too late. Many people are suffering from eye troubles and poor sight than any other one thing. Many whose eyes were failing say they had their eyes restored through the principle of Bon-Opto.
One man says after trying it: "I was almost blind; could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without glasses and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully; now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me."
A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy; on busy days, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seems clear, and I can even read fine print without glasses." Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and allow to dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two or four times daily and exercise them daily as directed.
You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you, even a little, take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time.
